preaching Jesus

The Gospel is the message about Jesus Christ, the Son of God. But how often in our gospel witness – whether that is in formal preaching, or in casual conversations and Bible studies – do we default to talking about doctrinal ideas and philosophy rather than the person of Christ.

We are delighted to welcome Sinclair Ferguson from Scotland (via the USA) as our main speaker at this year's Conference. Sinclair brings years of experience in active evangelism among adults, students and children to help us hone our understanding of the way our preaching and gospel conversations should be connecting people with the Lord Jesus. We will benefit enormously from his grasp of New Testament doctrine, and from his creative thinking about how to present our Lord and Saviour to the modern world.

We return this year to our normal pattern of practical seminars (listed right), which will cater for a wide variety of specialisms and interests that those in evangelistic ministry may have.

This is a conference not just for those who would call themselves 'evangelists', but for anyone who has a role in promoting evangelism in the local church. Come with a team from your church to enjoy the stimulation, encouragement and refreshment that this conference will bring.

THE EVANGELISTS' CONFERENCE

WHAT'S THE AIM?

To train and encourage gospel workers to be faithful to the gospel and to proclaim it in a relevant and engaging way.

WHO IS IT FOR?

The conference is designed for evangelists, and those who 'do the work of an evangelist', whether as church leaders, members of the ministry team or involved in a part-time or voluntary capacity. This annual event is a place where Christians can be confident of receiving:

- Good teaching about Biblical evangelism today
- Encouragement to keep preaching faithfully
- Practical help in presenting the gospel
- Stimulating fellowship, sharing ideas and resources

The Evangelists' Conference is organised by an interdenominational committee of evangelicals, including those from Oak Hill College, All Souls Church, London City Mission, and the NW Partnership.

SINCLAIR FERGUSON is the Senior Minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Columbia, South Carolina, USA. He is also a Professor of Systematic Theology at Redeemer Seminary in Dallas and a council member of the Alliance of Confessing Evangelicals. He has written numerous books, and is much in demand as a conference speaker.

AFTERNOON SEMINAR STREAMS

Choose one from the rich variety on offer. But don't worry—the others will be available to listen to online soon after at: www.evangelists-conference.org.uk.

SEMINAR A: The State of the Nation Rico Tice

How are the churches of Britain doing with regard to our primary mission to reach the lost. Rico assesses the state of the nation and asks: "What should we be working on together?"

SEMINAR B: Preaching Jesus in the inner city Various contributors at both venues

Those who preach Jesus in hard-to-reach places will encourage us with their stories, insights and experience of how to reach the "unreachable".

SEMINAR C: Lessons from History Jeremy Thomas

What can we learn from some of our great evangelical forebears. What did they do well that we have lost? What mistakes did they make that we can avoid?

SEMINAR D: Preaching Jesus in a pluralistic culture Dan Strange

Dan Strange from Oak Hill College helps us understand the modern mindset which is hostile to our message about a unique saviour. This seminar will offer practical help to us in communicating the gospel in our modern world.
